Up Front

When the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences presents its 47th annual Oscars on national television April 8, films seen on Home Box Office in recent months will be prominent nominees.

Chinatown, a February HBO attraction, was nominated in 11 categories, including best picture. It will be competing in that classification with The Conversation (premiered on HBO in October).

Among other Chinatown citations are Jack Nicholson for best actor and Faye Dunaway for best actress. Diahann Carroll also is a best actress nominee for Claudine, which will be encored on April 3 and 8.

Jeff Bridges of Thunderbolt and Lightfoot, which premieres this month, is a candidate for best supporting actor. Valentina Cortese (Day for Night) and Madeline Kahn (Blazing Saddles) were singled out for supporting actress performances. Both these films will be encored during the current month.

Among the men who put the films together — producers, directors and screen writers — Francis Ford Coppola (The Conversation), Roman Polanski (Chinatown), Robert Towne (Chinatown) and Francois Truffaut (Day for Night) all will be anxiously awaiting the Oscar envelope openings.

Other films in the Oscar running and to be seen again this month are The Great Gatsby (costumes, musical score) and Daisy Miller (costumes).

Ordeal by Fire — The HBO studio and control center is within the area affected by the New York Telephone Company's disastrous Feb. 27 fire. Portions of picture and sound feeds to HBO viewers were put out of action, but the network didn't miss a performance, thanks to hard work and improvisation by HBO technical and engineering personnel.

Bob and Ray Special — Any one who has snickered, chortled or guffawed at Wally Ballou, Fred Falvy, Mary Backstage, the Bert and Harry beer commercials and other figments of the offbeat imaginations of comics Bob Elliott and Ray Goulding will be pleased to hear Bob and Ray will do an original 60-minute special on HBO next month. Watch for "Bob and Ray: The One and Only" in May.

PLAYOFF TIME AGAIN!

Playoff time is, in the words of Dickens' Tale of Two Cities, the best of times and the worst of times—the best for pro basketball and hockey fans, but ulcer time for HBO schedule makers.

In April and May, HBO viewers will see playoff action in the National Basketball Association, the American Basketball Association, the National Hockey League and possibly the World Hockey Association.

Scheduling playoff games in advance is impossible and will mean replacement at times of programs listed in this entertainment guide. The printed schedule has been planned to minimize inconvenience from substitutions.

Schedule changes will be announced hourly during the day on the HBO upcoming programs channel and immediately before a replacement is to be made.

Pleasing sports fans is complicated by many things.

Conflicts with commercial TV, and in some cases the territorial rights of local teams, must be avoided.

Teams qualifying for the playoffs, pairings and home court advantages depend on regular season standings.

Finally, each elimination series could end in three or four games, or go a five- or seven-game limit. Then on to the next round, and more of the same!

April on Home Box Office also will offer a live heavyweight boxing card from the Nassau Coliseum on April 4, with unbeaten Duane Bobick meeting Terry Hinke and Rodney Bobick, Duane's younger brother, facing Mac Foster.

For sports history buffs, "Greatest Fights of the Century" looks at middleweight and heavyweight classics, and an exciting new series, "Greatest Sports Legends" covers the careers of Mickey Mantle, Frank Gifford, Bob Cousy, Stan Musial, Jesse Owens, Jimmy Demaret, Eddie Arcaro, Elgin Baylor and Ollie Matson. (Some of these specials could be pre-empted by playoff games but will be seen later.)

P.S. A busy summer sports schedule on HBO will be ushered in by the World Team Tennis, featuring Billie Jean King and the New York Sets, and HBO's third summer of Professional Bowlers Association tournaments.

TWENTY YEARS OF ROCK...THE VISUAL ARTS & TRAVEL

Bring back six of the 1950s most popular rock groups for a special performance, and the result is a memorable music experience. "Twenty Years of Rock and Roll", on the Home Box Office network in April.

The Five Satins, The Skyliners, Brooklyn Bridge, The Coasters, The Drifters and Tony Williams and The New Platters were videotaped by HBO and Barmann's Concerts and Productions in concert at the packed 12,000-seat Rockland County Community College arena.

Each group has had at least one million-record seller, and with dozens of hits from which to select, producer-director Drew Cummings has put together a program to carry HBO viewers from the early days of rock to the midst of the current scene. Favorites include "Poison Ivy" and "Charlie Brown" by the Coasters, "In the Still of the Night" by The Five Satins, The Platters' "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes" and The Drifters' "Under the Boardwalk".

Interspersed throughout the musical feast are interviews with the performers by oldies authority and show m.c. Clay Cole.

"Twenty Years of Rock and Roll" bows on HBO on April 13, with a repeat midnight show on April 25.

A fitting tone will be set by American Graffiti, HBO's April 5-11 premiere movie, which uses 40 rock hits of the '50s and early '60s to set its mood.

Also making it a big month for rock devotees, "Celebration IV", another in the continuing HBO series, features the classic rock group, Emerson, Lake and Palmer.

All that's only one part of HBO's noteworthy special programming for April:

The Artist's Eye — a series on lives, philosophy and works of the world's great painters, sculptors and architects begins April 10 with internationally-known sculptor Jacques Lipchitz, follows with Renaissance master Giotto. Continuing host is artist, critic and TV personality Russell Connor.

Venture — is "travel" with a difference premiering on April 12. Each week, a different locale abroad will be explored — not in travelogue form, but light and lively looks at sights, sounds and lifestyles. Venture focuses first on Scandinavia.
